CLINICAL Corner

Respiratory Virus Season

Protect yourself before the winter season and gatherings. Ask your clinician or pharmacist which flu, updated COVID 19, and RSV vaccines are right for you. Staying home when you're sick and taking extra precautions, especially when you're at higher risk, can make all the differences. New Mexico has issued 2026–27 COVID 19 vaccine guidance.

Breast Health and Screening

Breast Cancer Awareness Month offers a clear reminder to check whether a mammogram is due. The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends screening every two years for women ages 40 to 74 at average risk. Members with a new breast change or higher risk should talk with their clinician about individual care.

Cold weather and Carbon Monoxide

Heat your home safely. As temperatures fall, remember to test carbon monoxide and smoke alarms. Never run a generator, grill, or other fuel-burning device inside a home or garage. Carbon monoxide cannot be seen or smelled; headache, dizziness, and nausea can be warning signs. New Mexico health officials have specifically highlighted this winter hazard.

Mental Health during shorter days and holidays.

Shorter days and holiday pressures may be difficult for some people. Strive to maintain a manageable sleep and activity routine. Reach out to a trusted person, and seek professional support if sadness persists or disrupts daily life. For immediate emotional crisis support, call or text 988.
